

What is LEVEL UP?

LEVEL UP is a new and free course for young people (16-18) by Rambert running from September until December 2021 where you'll explore your creative side in new ways.

Places are limited but we'll get in touch with everyone who applies to let you know if you're invited to a workshop at Rambert HQ on the Southbank. From that workshop we'll make our final selection (there are a maximum of six final places).

You'll be supported to push yourself, try new things and develop new skills. You'll meet with guest artists and people who work at Rambert who'll share some of their skills and how they got to work in the cultural sector. Each session will focus on a different area of the creative industry, for instance producing, marketing, production and social media. As well as learning new things and meeting new people, you'll also get to create something new and fresh – you'll make a short film, sharing what you've learned, with a leading video artist to be premiered on Rambert Home Studio (rambert.org.uk/homestudio).

Who is it for?

It is open to anyone to apply who lives in London, aged 16-18 and wants to be brilliant and daring and explore where their inner creativity can take them.

Rambert is committed to anti-racism. We have a vision for Rambert as a radically inclusive and safe environment. We welcome and encourage applications from young people who identify as Black, Asian or ethnically diverse; LGBTQ+, Neurodiverse; D/deaf and/or disabled.

Our building located in the Southbank is fully accessible, with step-free access to the building, and lifts to all levels.

What do you exactly mean by 'creativity'?

This is partly up to you. At Rambert we see 'creativity' as a broad spectrum – you might be interested in DJing or photography, design or dance – or something else altogether. We want to know what makes you passionate – what gives you inspiration, ambition, belief. Yes, we're the UK's leading dance company but you don't have to just be interested in dance or performance to get something from this course.

How much commitment do I have to give?

Those who are selected will attend fortnightly sessions (held on Wednesdays, 6.30pm-8pm at Rambert's building on the Southbank). You will be set tasks to work on in your own time between each session, this is a chance to help unlock your creativity, get you thinking about things and get the most out of your time on the course. In between these onsite sessions, there will be opportunities to attend cultural events, and you will have a weekly check-in with the facilitator (either on Zoom or in person) who will support you on your journey in the course.

Places are limited so you will be expected to attend every fortnightly session.

How much does it cost?

Level Up is free. You will need to get to our Southbank studios for the meetings. But if the cost of this is concern, please talk to us.

How do I apply?

The first step is to apply by 30 July, to apply click here. Shortlisted applicants will then be invited to a fun, participative workshop in August at Rambert's Southbank building. Then the final cohort will be ready to begin in September. Places are limited but we will get in touch with everyone who applies to let them know if they have been invited to a preliminary workshop at Rambert.

If you want any more info or want to chat more about this course, email Daniel (he/him) Head of Participation and Community on levelup@rambert.org.uk.

House Rules

We invite everyone we partner with to subscribe to the same house rules we live by at Rambert

- Everything starts with diversity and inclusion
- Always believe it can be better
- Take us with you
- We trust each other
- Look after yourself so you can look after others
- We won't compromise the planet, like we don't compromise our art
- Don't look back but remember where you come from
- To be superhuman, you need to be super Human